

SFGate

66 °F San Francisco, CA (change)
Mostly Cloudy Today 52/70 Wed. 52/72
5 Day Forecast Traffic

Tuesday Nov 13, 2012 1:20 PM PT

Search sfgate.com Web Search by YAHOO! Businesses

Sign In | Register

Home News Sports Business Entertainment Food Living Travel Columns Shopping Cars Jobs Real Estate Index WEEKLY AD
Movies Music & Nightlife Performance Art Events Books TV & Radio Horoscope Comics Games Things To Do

Esa-Pekka Salonen review: powerful punch

Joshua Kosman
Published 3:43 p.m., Friday, November 9, 2012

3 4 0
 Tweet Like Share
 Comments (0) Email This
 Larger | Smaller Font
 Printable Version

There will be plenty of opportunities this weekend to appreciate Esa-Pekka Salonen's gifts as a conductor in the Berkeley concerts he's leading with the Philharmonia Orchestra. But before we get to that, what an extraordinary composer he is!

Thursday's "Composer Portrait" concert in Hertz Hall, the opening salvo of Salonen's Berkeley residency presented by Cal Performances, was a nonstop explosion of delight and amazement. The program included just four fairly short works, across a range of moods and characters, yet they all displayed Salonen's ability to pack a wealth of artistry into a small canvas.

There are times, in fact, when I think that Salonen's work could serve as a handy checklist of what music can and should be. It's rhetorically transparent - even a first-time listener always has a sense of where the piece is going at any given moment - but never predictable. It's beautiful and dramatic and witty and tender and briskly inventive; I never get to the end of a piece by Salonen without feeling a wistful pang that it's over so soon.

What is perhaps most impressive is how many of his pieces are built around a clear motivating idea that gives the music a shape without exhausting its level of inspiration. Salonen often sets out to write a piece that does some particular thing or embodies some formal invention; knowing what it is helps you hear the music, but doesn't substitute for the experience.

Take, for example, the string quartet "Homunculus," which got a fervent and lovely performance by the Calder Quartet. The title comes from a 17th century theory of human reproduction that imagined a tiny but perfectly proportioned man - a homunculus - inhabiting each sperm cell who then grows in the womb into a full human.

Salonen's goal, he says, was to write a single small piece that embodied all the attributes of a full-size quartet - and so he did. Within its single 15-minute span, "Homunculus" encompasses four standard movement types, including a scherzo and a lyrical slow movement, all of which cluster together in a quick succession of ideas.

What's striking about the piece, though, is not so much the premise as the suavity and tact

Entertainment Photos

Displaying 1-3 of 40

Glamour Women of the Year Awards 2012

'The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn - Part 2' premiere

MTV EMAs 2012: Red carpet

Most Read | Most Commented | Most Emailed

1. Software pioneer sought in Belize slaying
2. Muddy cleanup underway in Daly City
3. General investigated for emails to Petraeus friend
4. Prop. 30 funds for UC will go to Wall Street
5. Scandal widens; US general's emails 'flirtatious'
6. Mission Bay garage's architectural edge
7. 49ers' Kaepernick is loaded for Bears

loading...

▶ Cheryl Burke on Why She'd Be a Good 'Bachelorette'

FROM OUR HOMEPAGE

with which he executes it. Each successive musical idea is so distinctive and so arresting that the dialogue is easily followed; there's an explosive climax that seems to come out of nowhere yet makes perfect sense in retrospect.

Something similar happens in "Dichotomie," a bravura piano showpiece superbly performed by Gloria Cheng. Its two movements are "Mécanisme," in which a motoric rhythmic pattern unexpectedly shows signs of life, and "Organisme," in which, conversely, a series of fluid rhapsodic phrases morph into mechanical repetitions.

Again, that description is accurate enough, but it doesn't convey the music's full splendor - the vivacious, driving charm of the first movement, or the humorous effect as the second movement collapses into glissandos that sound like a parody of Ravel.

The program, which also included some onstage conversation between Salonen and Cal Performances director Matías Tarnopolsky, began and ended with virtuoso displays by cellist Kacy Clopton. She began with a remarkable rendition of "Knock, Breathe, Shine," a wonderfully versatile three-movement etude for solo cello, and concluded as the soloist (with the Eco Ensemble led by David Milnes) in the chamber concerto "Mania."

"Mania" is a virtuoso display of compositional technique, in which the goal is to keep the music constantly moving moving moving while still varying the tempo and shape of the musical line. There are fast and slow passages, busy and sparse passages - but the frenetic impulse never flags. It's a piece that leaves the listener enjoyably wrung out.

Esa-Pekka Salonen with the Philharmonia Orchestra: 7 p.m. Saturday, 3 p.m. Sunday. Zellerbach Hall, UC Berkeley. $30-$150. (510) 642-9988. www.calperformances.org.

Joshua Kosman is The San Francisco Chronicle's music critic. E-mail: jkosman@sfgate.com

Printable Version
 Email This
 Like
 Tweet 3
0
 Share

We Recommend

- Katie Price hospitalized after fifth boob job
- Salonen leads 2 vibrant performances
- London Breed is S.F.'s election shocker
- Giant Angel Pagan at Macy's
- Bicycling in San Francisco
- 'Wilder Times' review: Charm and whimsy

Subscribe to the San Francisco Chronicle and receive access to the Chronicle for iPad App and a gift:

- Sunday + a $15 gift card
- Fri-Sun + a $15 gift card
- Mon-Sun + a $25 gift card

Select an offer

Add Your Comment

New to the site?

To use commenting, you need to sign up.

Already a member?

Please log in. \(Forgot Password?\)

Username

'Flirtatious' email in scandal

General Allen's contact with Jill Kelley probed as Petraeus investigation expands.

Slopes are opening, skiers

See pics from today in Tahoe as six resorts will open this weekend, just in time for Thanksgiving.

Victoria's Secret pulls outfit

Broadcast of annual fashion show edited after criticism of 'Thanksgiving' getup. Photos